

Occupational Safety and Health Legislation Requirements

This one-day course is invaluable and discusses the obligations of staff under the Occupational Safety and Health Act. Every member of staff across all levels of responsibility within your organisation needs to know how the legislation affects them and how they can manage occupational safety and health.

Course Contents

- Framework of the OSH Act as it applies to the duty of care for managing OSH
- Regulations, Australian Standards, Codes of Practice and Guidance Notes
- Consultative mechanisms and arrangements
- Management of health and safety in the workplace through a Safety Management System – AS 4804
- Hazard identification, risk assessment and control strategies
- Safety and Health Representatives and Committees
- Keeping records of OSH

Learning Outcomes

When participants have completed the course they will be able to:

- Identify the key legislative compliance requirements of the Act;
- Outline the broad duties of care that the Act places on employers and employees; and

Develop and apply an OSH framework in the workplace.